Richard King Mellon, 1899–1970

Richard King Mellon was born in Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, on June 19, 1899, the son of Richard Beatty Mellon and Jennie King Mellon. Mr. Mellon served his country in both World Wars and in peacetime, attaining the rank of Lieutenant General, United States Army Reserve, and receiving the Distinguished Service Medal.

In 1936 Mr. Mellon married the former Constance Mary Prosser, who served as Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the Richard King Mellon Foundation from its inception in 1947 until her death in 1980.

A renowned sportsman, Mr. Mellon generously endeavored to preserve the quality of the natural environment and to protect its wildlife.

Mr. Mellon died on June 3, 1970.

The Trustees of the Richard King Mellon Foundation approved 233 grants totaling $90,845,750 and paid out grants in the amount of $95,571,584. These gifts represent the Foundation’s commitment to improving the quality of life in southwestern Pennsylvania by supporting initiatives that encourage innovation and industry, stimulate learning, help people in need, and protect land and conserve natural resources here and across the country.

Regional Economic Development
Positive indicators, such as a net gain in population reversing years of net loss and unemployment below that of Pennsylvania and the nation, encouraged the Foundation to continue a grant-making strategy focused on economic diversification. The Foundation’s 94 grants for Regional Economic Development totaled $51,409,500. Investments of $6,879,000 in 2011 went toward advancing software technology and energy sectors and improving workforce preparedness. A grant to Innovation Works, Inc., which has helped launch 152 high-tech companies that have attracted hundreds of millions of investment capital, received $400,000 for its start-up accelerator Alpha Lab. Pittsburgh Gateways Corporation will apply $1.5 million to help convert a former vocational school located in the Lower Hill District into the Energy Innovation Center where more than 15 corporate and educational partners will pilot, market, and train workforce for state-of-the-art energy manufacturing products and services. The Allegheny Conference on Community Development is using gifts totaling $500,000 for an energy industry occupational analysis and to devise supply chain strategies for several of Pittsburgh’s energy sectors — natural gas, nuclear, and wind — and to identify opportunities to capitalize on one of the region’s most abundant natural resources, water.

Gifts to WQED Multimedia ($550,000), Pittsburgh Community Broadcasting Corporation ($1.5 million), and Pittsburgh Filmmakers ($85,000) are aimed at enhancing southwestern Pennsylvania’s access to reliable non-commercial news and public affairs coverage as well as innovative multi-media production capabilities. Grants of $5 million to the Pittsburgh Symphony, Inc., and $1.5 million to The Pittsburgh Trust for Cultural Resources will support cultural tourism and Downtown development. Riverlife, another partner in Downtown revitalization, will use $1 million toward the completion of Three Rivers Park.

Regional organizations are developing innovative and sustainable solutions to upgrade aging infrastructure, especially in the areas of water treatment and transportation. 3 Rivers Wet Weather, Inc., received $800,000 to develop cost-effective green ways to consolidate oversight and improve the functioning of disparate Allegheny County water treatment facilities. Grants to Carnegie Mellon University ($100,000), Sustainable Pittsburgh ($757,000), and Oakland Planning and Development Corporation ($200,000) contribute technological solutions to improve Pittsburgh’s public transit, road, and way-finding systems.
Since 1999 Riverlife has been working with public and private landowners to implement a master plan for Three Rivers Park, a continuous series of waterside parks and trails along the city of Pittsburgh’s Allegheny, Monongahela, and Ohio Rivers. Today 80 percent of the project is completed. Shown here is the Allegheny River’s North Shore Trail.

Believing that a strong regional economy requires a diversified health care system that provides patient stakeholders and medical personnel with options, the Trustees approved a $50,000 grant to the Allegheny Conference on Community Development to develop recommendations for generating competitiveness in the regional health care system.

Education
The Foundation encourages a wide array of educational opportunities to enhance the region’s competitiveness. Grants totaling $17,938,500 for higher education, independent schools, and early childhood education went to 35 institutions and initiatives. Over half of this funding — $9 million — supported capital and endowment projects at universities and colleges in Pittsburgh and other southwestern Pennsylvania communities. Duquesne University of the Holy Ghost received $4 million to renovate its laboratories in the Schools of Pharmacy and Natural and Environmental Sciences. Community College of Allegheny County Educational Foundation received $3 million to upgrade math, science, and health care programs.

Gifts to primary and secondary private and public schools supported efforts to improve student performance and operating efficiencies. Imani Christian Academy received funds for mentorship and career path development programs. The Extra Mile Foundation, Inc., received $250,000 to consolidate two parochial schools in the Diocese of Pittsburgh; and the Pittsburgh Public Schools received $150,000 for consulting services to develop a comprehensive budgetary and debt reduction strategy. A preschool education provider, Family Communications, Inc., received $1.5 million toward the production of a PBS series, Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood.

To mark the tenth anniversary of the events of 9/11 and to honor the men and women who left a legacy of courageous action, a $1 million gift was made to the National Park Foundation for the Flight 93 Memorial in Stonycreek Township, Pennsylvania.
Human Services
Contributions of $16,082,750 to 69 human services agencies and initiatives reflect grant making that provides fundamental care such as food, shelter, and medicine to the region’s underserved and disadvantaged populations.

Several grants went to agencies that provide housing and a complementary network of support services. Among these were $1 million to Adelphi USA Inc., to upgrade 22 group homes for youths, ages 10 to 18; $235,000 to Bridge To Independence, Inc., for transitional housing for homeless women and families; and $500,000 to Allegheny Council To Improve Our Neighborhoods-Housing, Inc., for a supervised residential program serving 18- to 24-year-olds no longer eligible for foster care. East End Cooperative Ministry, Inc., will use a $2 million gift to help construct a multi-purpose facility that includes a lodging center for the homeless.

Agencies focused on improving the quality of life in the distressed neighborhood of Homewood also received support. The University of Pittsburgh School of Social Work will use $175,000 for the Homewood Children’s Village, a new initiative emphasizing children’s development. Organizations with strong youth responsibility development programs, Bethany Baptist Church and Rosedale Block Cluster, Inc., received $100,000 and $8,750, respectively. A gift of $650,000 went to Homewood’s Alma Illery Medical Center, a division of Primary Care Health Services, while $250,000 to Operation Better Block, Inc., is targeted for improving safety and eradicating housing blight.

On Pittsburgh’s North Side, Manchester Youth Development Center, Inc., received $400,000 to help young children prepare for school and to provide older children a safe and nurturing after-school environment.

Conservation
Conservation of land, improvement of water quality, and preservation of natural habitat and wildlife benefit all of the Foundation’s grant-making objectives, since the well-being of the environment and careful husbandry of natural resources are fundamental to our quality of life. In 2011 the Foundation’s 35 gifts for Conservation totaled $25,415,000. The Conservation Fund received $2.5 million to continue efforts to protect Montana’s Rocky Mountain Front, a project in which the Foundation has participated since 2007. To date 78,730 acres of this nationally treasured land have been protected. Additionally, The Conservation Fund was awarded $10 million for the protection of a working forest in the East Grand Lake region of Maine and $5 million for the protection of property along the “last wild” Neches River in Texas.

The Western Pennsylvania Conservancy received $500,000 to preserve the watershed of one of the Allegheny River’s most pristine tributaries, French Creek. In order to advance sustainable land use planning and the protection of special habitats in Allegheny County, the Allegheny Land Trust received $90,000.

Because the restoration and protection of western Pennsylvania watersheds revitalize water quality and the surrounding habitat, the Foundation made grants to organizations that undertake reclamation, encourage watershed science, and promote sustainable water and agricultural practices. A gift of $675,000 to the Foundation for Pennsylvania Watersheds will address both water quality (coldwater fisheries) and habitat (wetland restoration). American Rivers received $1 million to remove obsolete dams, which also will help restore aquatic life and improve public safety.

Transitions
My fellow Trustees and I are grateful to Richard A. Mellon for his two-year tenure as the Foundation President, and we are pleased to announce that another member of the third generation of the Richard King Mellon family, Bruce King Mellon Henderson, will serve as President for a two-year term.

We continue to be inspired by the numerous contributions made by the talented and highly motivated individuals at organizations dedicated to improving southwestern Pennsylvania and the conservation of the nation’s natural resources.

Seward Prosser Mellon
Chairman
The transformation of Pittsburgh from its former domination by heavy industry to its current knowledge-based economy has resulted in dynamic growth across many sectors. The region’s high-technology clusters, for example, have been a significant source of wealth creation. Over the last twelve years, Innovation Works, Inc. (IW), a nonprofit incubator and seed-stage investor, has helped entrepreneurs in nanotechnology, robotics, and life sciences create more than 150 companies, including some of the region’s most successful: Plextronics, Redzone, and Medrad. One of IW’s newer programs, AlphaLab, accelerates the commercialization of software and Internet-related innovations through a 20-week intensive curriculum and has launched 33 start-ups in just four years.

Other growing industries and their workforces are gaining market edge from synergies with high technology. Pittsburgh Gateways Corporation has forged partnerships with more than 15 companies, schools, and universities to develop the Energy Innovation Center. Located in a former vocational school in the Lower Hill District, the center will be a resource for energy research and workforce training, while showcasing state-of-the-art energy products and energy-related services.

According to the Allegheny Conference on Community Development (ACCD), the region’s energy sectors and related businesses account for 16 percent of the economy and generate directly and indirectly 157,000 jobs and $19 billion in gross domestic product. Recognizing the potential for future growth, ACCD has selected three of these sectors — natural gas, nuclear, and wind — for which it is developing supply chain expansion strategies. In parallel, ACCD is working with a consultant to forecast skill set requirements and supply and demand for energy-related occupations. This analysis will be used to engage directly with community colleges, career and technical schools, and other educators to shape curricula to align with the needs of industry. Southwestern Pennsylvania’s abundance of fresh water also has prompted ACCD to target business expansion opportunities associated with drinking water, river transportation, water treatment infrastructure, and energy extraction.

With the demand for fresh water increasing, ACCD (top far right) sees an opportunity to expand the region’s already significant water industry. According to ACCD, there are 3,000 water-related businesses that generate $2 billion in annual sales in western Pennsylvania.

Pittsburgh Gateways Corporation is transforming the former Clifford B. Connelley Trade School in the Lower Hill District (bottom right) into the Energy Innovation Center (EIC). Eaton Corporation will contribute electrical distribution equipment for EIC’s mechanical infrastructure and use the facility for workforce training similar to its highly utilized Warrendale, Pennsylvania, Power Systems Experience Center (top near right).

Another EIC partner is Thar Geothermal (below) whose highly energy-efficient geothermal system will be incorporated into the facility’s heating, ventilation, and cooling network as a demonstration project for this new company.

Public Affairs Media and Cultural Tourism

Several of Pittsburgh’s media and arts institutions have strengthened themselves recently through realignments, joint ventures, and audience and membership development, thus enhancing their cultural, educational, and economic value to southwestern Pennsylvania.

In order to reallocate assets for its educational mission, Duquesne University of the Holy Ghost sold the WDUQ-FM radio signal 90.5 to Essential Public Media (EPM), a subsidiary of Pittsburgh Community Broadcasting Corporation (PCBC). The transfer preserves the news format previously offered on WDUQ and also allows for in-depth journalism. Moreover, EPM 90.5 is now co-located with PCBC’s WYEP 91.3, providing efficiencies in the operations of each.

WQED Multimedia is the region’s principal source for Public Broadcasting Station (PBS) television and also operates a classical radio station. WQED recently focused on increasing its television audience, which grew from 670,000 to 795,000 viewers weekly in 2011. Pittsburgh Entertainment Project/Steeltown Entertainment Project (SEP) was created to build a vibrant digital media sector for the region. Now WQED and SEP have joined forces to develop two television pilots for national licensing, one of which has a commitment to air on NBC stations.

Now WQED and SEP have joined forces to develop two television pilots for national licensing, one of which has a commitment to air on NBC stations.

Downtown Pittsburgh attracts 2 million visitors annually, thanks in large part to the extensive programming and revitalization efforts of The Pittsburgh Trust for Cultural Resources. Also under the Trust’s umbrella are the Dance Council, the Three Rivers Arts Festival, and First Night, enhancing the operational efficiencies of these popular arts organizations. In order to build on its value to the region, the Trust has begun an already-promising campaign to increase its membership level to 10,000 by 2015.

The Trust not only generates tourism by drawing audiences to district performances at venues like the Benedum Center for Performing Arts (above), but also generates $2 million annually in parking and amusement tax revenues for the City of Pittsburgh.

PCBC’s Essential Public Media 90.5 (left) offers 24-hour news coverage, including 14 hours weekly of locally produced programs such as Essential Pittsburgh and The Allegheny Front and 80 hours weekly of nationally syndicated news and public affairs programs such as Talk of the Nation and Science Friday.

Part of SEP’s mission is to develop film writing and production skills in middle- and high-school students through its Take a Shot film contest (near right). This popular competition, which offers cash prizes, drew submissions from 80 student teams in 2011.

WQED (far right), working with PBS, has brought iQZoo to the Pittsburgh Zoo & PPG Aquarium. iQZoo provides supplemental content about zoo wildlife and their habitats that visitors can access on smart phones at kiosks throughout the zoo and online at the iQZoo website.
Reliable utilities and transportation are cornerstones of thriving economic activity and quality of life. In the face of demands for improvements, southwestern Pennsylvania agencies are working cooperatively to address complex water treatment and transportation challenges, using economies of scale, green construction, and new technology.

Throughout Allegheny County, outdated municipal wastewater systems have led to frequent overflows of untreated sewage and storm water during periods of wet weather. To help the Allegheny County Sanitation Authority (ALCOSAN) and the 83 municipalities responsible for sewage collection achieve compliance with the Federal Clean Water Act, 3 Rivers Wet Weather, Inc. (3RW), has been identifying ways to consolidate operations and develop cost-effective green solutions for the necessary upgrades.

New pilot-program technologies for transportation and way finding are being led by Traffic 21, a transportation research initiative of Carnegie Mellon University (CMU). For the Allegheny County Port Authority transit system, Traffic 21 has developed a smart-phone application that provides real-time information on bus arrivals and departures and, with Sustainable Pittsburgh and the Oakland Task Force, is engaged in the Port Authority’s planning of a bus rapid-transit system between Downtown and Oakland. In East Liberty, Traffic 21 has installed software for traffic signals that improves traffic flow and pedestrian safety while reducing vehicular idling.

The Westmoreland County Airport Authority (WCAA) is expanding the usability of its private and commercial Arnold Palmer Regional Airport by developing a 20,000-square-foot multi-purpose facility that will serve as the primary satellite for Westmoreland County’s Emergency Operations Center (911).

The Foundation supports higher education, independent schools, and early childhood education, focusing on initiatives that result in healthy emotional development, intellectual discipline, and productive skills.

At Pittsburgh’s Duquesne University of the Holy Ghost, where more than 10,000 students are enrolled annually in 188 undergraduate, graduate, and doctorate programs, almost half the students are attracted from out of state and 81 foreign countries. Among Duquesne’s most competitive programs are the Schools of Pharmacy and Natural and Environmental Sciences, where extensive improvements have been made to laboratories and classrooms. Duquesne also has opened a pharmacy in Pittsburgh’s Hill District that not only provides students with hands-on learning but also provides this low-income community a much needed service.

Founded in 1993 as an alternative to local public schools for at-risk African-American children, Imani Christian Academy has grown from 30 students in a single-family home to 246 students in grades K–12 in a former elementary school facility. The curriculum focuses on students’ full development and includes mentorship programs and leadership and vocational training. Imani has achieved a matriculation level of 95 percent with 86 percent of these students going on to higher education.

Fred Rogers’ innovative contributions to early childhood development through his public television series Mister Rogers’ Neighborhood continue today in the company he founded, Family Communications, Inc., known as the Fred Rogers Company. The nonprofit’s newest creation is Daniel Tiger’s Neighborhood, a 40-episode animated musical series for preschoolers. Inspired by the original Fred Rogers’ program, the series debuts nationally in 2012 on PBS KIDS.

New Wilmington, PA
$500,000 toward renovation of the social sciences building Patterson Hall
Throughout southwestern Pennsylvania, many adults and children find themselves without housing because of circumstances that may include behavioral and mental health issues; poverty; physical, sexual, and substance abuse; academic failure; and unplanned pregnancy. Several nonprofits extend aid by offering shelter and rehabilitative services that address these challenges.

Located in the borough of Braddock, Bridge To Independence, Inc. (BTI), operates three transitional housing programs for families: two that serve women with or without children, including women in recovery, and one that serves two-parent families. Clients are able to stay in BTI’s stable environment for up to two years, allowing the time necessary to make meaningful improvements to their lives.

Among its many services, Adelphoi USA Inc./Adelphoi Village cares for 400 youths, ages 10–18, in 22 group homes across Westmoreland County and five other neighboring counties. On its 8-acre Latrobe campus, where five of the group homes are located, Adelphoi operates the Ketterer School, chartered by the Greater Latrobe School District.

Allegheny Council To Improve Our Neighborhoods-Housing, Inc. (ACTION-Housing), has been a distinguished provider of affordable and free housing in Allegheny County since 1957, having developed more than 25,000 housing units. Today ACTION-Housing owns and/or operates 1,800 housing units that serve a wide range of families and individuals in need. One of its newest programs, My Place, provides supervised apartment living and intensive care management for 18- to 24-year-olds who are at risk of becoming homeless as they age out of foster care.

OBB has secured Oxford Development Company and S & A Homes as the developers of the North Homewood Avenue Café 524 project site (middle left). This central Homewood project has expanded from a small retail and community development into a 56,000-square-foot development that includes 41 units of housing for senior citizens (middle right).

Each year PCHS’ Alma Illery Medical Center (bottom right) provides 22,000 pediatric and adult patients medical, mental health, dental, and lab services. The Foundation’s grant helped secure $12 million in federal assistance for facility and equipment upgrades.

While many communities in the region are flourishing, some have been undermined for many years by economic and educational disadvantages and violent crime. In Pittsburgh’s Homewood neighborhood, a number of community-based organizations are addressing these and additional challenges on their own and through a comprehensive community initiative, the Homewood Children’s Village.

Community and economic development are principal objectives of Operation Better Block, Inc. (OBB). With the endorsement of local residents, OBB, along with the Housing Alliance of Pittsburgh, has targeted for improvement a 30-block area in central Homewood, where there is a large concentration of abandoned property.

In this neighborhood, where 72 percent of households are headed by single parents, Bethany Baptist Church and Rosedale Block Cluster, Inc. (RBC), each manage successful youth programs designed to build self-esteem, work skills, and leadership qualities. Bethany provides youth ministry, counseling, tutoring, and summer programs, in addition to mentoring programs for Faison Elementary School children and young mothers. RBC’s landscape training and employment program targets male high school dropouts, some of whom have been through the judicial system. Working with Penn State Extension, RBC is exploring ways to add urban agriculture and food business components to the landscape program in an effort to help make itself more financially sustainable.

Primary Care Health Services (PCHS) at Homewood’s Alma Illery Medical Center provides medical, mental health, dental, and lab services for pediatric and adult patients, 30 percent of whom are uninsured and 44 percent of whom are on Medicaid.

Notes From the Heart music program

The National Organization on Disability (below) will bring to Pittsburgh in the fall of 2012 one of its signature programs, Wounded Warrior Careers, that offers intensive career support to post-9/11 veterans with disabilities. To widen local support, the Pittsburgh Tissue Engineering Institute sponsored a fund-raising race last fall to benefit the program.

The Mentoring Partnership of Southwestern PA (bottom) provides training for volunteer mentors and works with more than 140 agencies to enrich mentoring programs such as Reading Is Fundamental.
The Foundation believes that places of ecological significance, countrywide and in western Pennsylvania, merit preservation and that conservation, through stewardship, also is essential to the sustainability of land that serves industry, institutional and commercial development, and housing.

In Maine The Conservation Fund (TCF) acquired 12,000 acres of certified (responsibly managed) forest that includes several miles of undeveloped shoreline along the Upper St. Croix River near the boundary with New Brunswick. This land will be added to a broader conservation effort that has resulted in the protection of 1.4 million acres of nearby property. In Texas TCF secured a 7,050-acre parcel that becomes part of a larger public- and private-agency effort to protect 60,000 acres of Neches River’s hardwood bottomlands.

In order to promote more environmentally sound and sustainable land use decision-making in Allegheny County, the Allegheny Land Trust (ALT) has developed a “Green Print,” a mapping tool that identifies lands where conservation will provide the greatest public benefit per acre.

In Maine TCF has protected this 12,000-acre working forest (bottom left) that includes several miles of pristine shoreline along six lakes.

French Creek (above) and its watershed have been a priority for WPC since the late 1960s due to the creek’s exceptionally high level of biodiversity that provides habitat for more than eighty species of fish and more than twenty species of freshwater mussels, a number of which are considered endangered. Contiguous municipal jurisdictions share watersheds, floodplains, wetlands, and streams so that decisions in one jurisdiction affect others. The objective of ALT’s Green Print (top left) is to provide data to Allegheny County and the county’s 130 municipal zoning authorities to help inform more environmentally sound and sustainable land use decision-making.
Efforts to restore watersheds by rehabilitating streams from past encroachments, such as low-head dams, and promoting biodiversity through the restoration of wetlands are Foundation priorities.

Of western Pennsylvania’s 2,400 dams, 1,800 are low-head, built for power generation or water supply and not intended for flood control. Yet, low-head dams frequently cause upstream flooding, and many no longer serve their original purpose. Moreover, they disrupt nature’s food web by preventing the natural migration of microbes and insects and facilitating the growth of oxygen-depleting agents such as golden algae. American Rivers provides technical assistance and funding that has resulted in the removal of 80 dams in western Pennsylvania since 1999.

Western Pennsylvania’s watersheds also are affected by the loss of wetlands (transitional lands between terrestrial and deepwater systems). These swamps, marshes, and bogs act as nature’s means of purifying water and controlling erosion and flooding, and they serve as wildlife feeding and birthing grounds. During the past several decades, Pennsylvania experienced a decline in wetland acreage; however, successful efforts are underway to reverse this trend. The Foundation for Pennsylvania Watersheds is helping the Commonwealth gain back wetland acreage through the Technical Assistance for Pennsylvania Land Owners program. This private-public partnership provides funding to expedite wetland restoration and protection through the reconversion of croplands back to wetlands, the development of riparian buffers, and the establishment of conservation easements. And despite a significant increase in land use, these restoration efforts have led to a net gain of almost 4,000 acres of wetlands.

Using conservation easements on traditional Montana ranches and fee acquisitions. The Conservation Fund has protected 78,730 acres of Montana’s Rocky Mountain Front (above), thereby protecting migratory habitat for grizzly bears and a wide variety of other species that depend on the front’s rich, special ecosystem, unique in the United States.

The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation works with the Pennsylvania Fish and Game Commission to survey and classify Pennsylvania streams, helping to determine what environmental regulations should be applied to adequately protect a stream. Students from Lycoming College are engaged to survey the species, numbers, and sizes of trout, which are “keystone indicators” of the environmental health of a stream (below).

Markets for identical assets or liabilities that the Foundation has the ability to access and the measurement date.

Level 2: Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability either directly or indirectly, including inputs in markets in which there are not considered to be active.

Level 3: Inputs that are unobservable.

Investments

In accordance with the authoritative guidance on fair value measurements and disclosures under Generally Accepted Accounting Principles (GAAP), the Foundation discloses the fair value of its investments in a hierarchy that prioritizes the inputs to value determinations in the following order:

1. Level 1: Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities.
2. Level 2: Observable inputs (other than Level 1 inputs) that are based on market data.
3. Level 3: Unobservable inputs that are based on the best information available in the circumstances.

The Foundation's investments in stocks and long-term debt instruments are classified as Level 1 and include active listed equities and certain short-term fixed income investments. The Foundation does not adjust the quoted price for such instruments, even in situations where the Foundation holds a large position and a sale of all of its holdings could reasonably impact the quoted price.

Investments that trade in markets that are not considered to be active, but are valued based on quoted market prices, dealer quotations, or alternative pricing sources, are classified as Level 2. These include certain U.S. government and sovereign obligations, government agency obligations, investment grade corporate bonds and less liquid equity securities.

Investments classified as Level 3 have significant unobservable inputs, as they trade infrequently or not at all. The inputs into the determinations of fair value are based upon the best information in the circumstances and may require significant management judgment. Certain of the Foundation's investments in stocks and long-term debt instruments are classified as Level 3 because they do not have an active market. Also, all of the Foundation's alternative investments are classified as Level 3. These investments are primarily made under agreements to participate in limited partnerships and are generally subject to certain withdrawal restrictions. Values for these partnerships, which may include investments in both nonmarketable and market-traded securities, are provided by the general partner and may be based on recent transactions, cash flow forecasts, appraisals and other factors.

Market values may be discounted for concentration of ownership. Because of the inherent uncertainty of valuing the investments in such partnerships and the manner of underlying investments held by the partnerships, the Foundation's estimate of fair value may differ significantly from the values that would have been used had a ready market for the investments existed. The financial statements of the limited partnerships are audited annually by independent auditing firms. Investments in these partnerships may be illiquid and, thus, there can be no assurance that the Foundation will be able to realize the value of such investments in a timely manner.

The Foundation's investments are exposed to various risks, such as interest rate, market, and credit. Due to the level of risk associated with the investments and the level of certainty related to changes in the value of investments, it is at least reasonably possible that significant changes in risks and in the near term may materially affect the amounts reported for the various financial statements.

Realized gain (loss) from dispositions of investments is determined by specific cost identification. Unrealized gain (loss) of investments represents the change in the difference between fair value estimated at December 31, 2011, and the total book value of investments held at the beginning and end of the year.

Use of Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect the reported amounts of assets and liabilities and the disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements. Estimates also include the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Program-Related Assets

The Foundation makes investments which advance its charitable mission and qualify as charitable distributions by the Internal Revenue Service. Such investments, which include loans made to various organizations and the investment in a private equity fund, earn below-market, risk-adjusted market rates of return. Management has reviewed the program-related assets and believes no allowance is necessary as of December 31, 2011 and 2010.

Recently Issued Accounting Standards

In May 2011, the Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) issued Accounting Standards Update (ASU) 2011-04 Amendments to Achieve Common Fair Value Measurement and Disclosure Requirements in U.S. GAAP and International Financial Reporting Standards (IFRS). ASU 2011-4 is intended to improve the comparability of fair value measurements presented and disclosed in financial statements prepared in accordance with U.S. GAAP and IFRS. The amendments are of two types: (1) those that clarify the FASB’s intent about the application of existing fair value measurement and disclosure requirements and (2) those that change a particular principle or requirement for measuring fair value or for disclosing information about fair value measurements. The update is effective for annual periods beginning after December 15, 2011. Foundation management does not believe the adoption of this update will have a material impact on the Foundation's financial statements.

Note 2: Taxes

The Foundation is exempt from federal income taxes under Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. The Foundation is subject to a federal excise tax equal to 2 percent of net investment income, which consists of realized gains and income, realized gains on sales of investments less realized losses to the extent that they can be offset against realized gains, less related investment expenses. The Foundation met certain distribution requirements defined in Section 512 of the Internal Revenue Code, resulting in a reduced tax of 1 percent of net investment income for the years ended December 31, 2011 and 2010.

At December 31, 2011 and 2010, deferred federal excise taxes are provided at 1 percent, which is the rate expected to be paid on unrealized gains on investments.

The Foundation is subject to the authoritative guidance on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes issued under GAAP. This guidance establishes a minimum threshold for financial statement recognition of the benefit of positions taken in filing tax returns (including whether an entity is taxable in a particular jurisdiction) and requires certain expanded tax disclosures. The Foundation has recorded no uncertain tax positions for the years ended December 31, 2011 and 2010 and reviews its tax positions and such conclusions under the guidance based on factors including, but not limited to, ongoing analyses of tax laws and regulations.

Note 3: Commitments

The Foundation is a Limited Partner in limited partnerships for investment purposes. At December 31, 2011 and 2010, the Foundation had contractually committed to additional investments of $98.7 million and $113.0 million, respectively.

At December 31, 2011, the Foundation had outstanding trades to purchase and sell investments with a settlement date in 2012 of $547.4 million and $97.4 million, respectively. At December 31, 2010, the Foundation had outstanding trades to purchase and sell investments with a settlement date in 2011 of $567.8 million and $146.6 million for a net payable of $33.4 million. These transactions are reflected within the financial statements on a net basis.

There are no current plans to sell any of these investments.

Note 5: Subsequent Events

The Foundation evaluated all activity through May 24, 2012, the date the financial statements were available to be issued, and concluded that no subsequent events have occurred that would require recognition in the financial statements or disclosure in the Notes to Financial Statements.

Report of Independent Auditors

To the Trustees of Richard King Mellon Foundation:

In our opinion, the accompanying statements of financial position and the related statements of activities and changes in net assets and of cash flows present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the Richard King Mellon Foundation at December 31, 2011 and 2010, and the changes in its net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Richard King Mellon Foundation’s management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits of these financial statements in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements, assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, and evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

Our audits were conducted for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements taken as a whole. The summary of investments as of December 31, 2011 and 2010, is presented for the purpose of additional analysis and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. Such information has been included in the audits of the balance sheet as of December 31, 2011 and 2010, and in the notes to the financial statements. The auditors believe that the balance of these statements taken as a whole.

May 24, 2012
Policy and Grant Guidelines

Approved in December 2009 and effective January 1, 2010, the Trustees established the following grant-making objectives and grant program priorities.

Objectives

The Foundation seeks to improve the competitive position of the region; strengthen the vitality of southwestern Pennsylvania, particularly the city of Pittsburgh and its neighborhoods; and protect precious green and natural infrastructure, particularly in western Pennsylvania.

Program Priorities

Southwestern Pennsylvania

Regional Economic Development

- University research and technology initiatives
- Initiatives promoting innovation, business diversification, local agriculture, and workforce excellence
- Urban community revitalization
- Regional cultural and recreational tourism

Education

- Colleges and universities integral to local communities
- Programs responsive to workforce market demands
- Programs designed to improve the quality of education performance
- Independent schools

Human Services

- Programs designed to achieve holistic and broadscale outcomes
- Early childhood programs focused on school readiness
- Career-focused, after-school programs
- Capacity-building initiatives

Western Pennsylvania

Conservation

- Land conservation with an emphasis on habitat protection and sustainable timber management
- Watershed protection and restoration with an emphasis on projects that are strategic
- Sustainable environments

The Foundation gives priority to projects and programs that have clearly defined outcomes and an evaluation component and has a preference for partnering with other donors on initiatives. The Foundation accepts applications throughout the year. The Foundation uses the Common Grant Application format, developed by Grantmakers of Western Pennsylvania, which may be obtained at the website address foundationcenter.org/grantmaker/rkmellon/ or by contacting the Foundation offices.
